

How did you find your microeconomics tutorials? [From an anonymous survey of first and second-year undergraduates.]

Student 1: good, well structured and comprehensive

Student 2: Very good at providing an intuitive economic understanding, particularly with some of the more mathematical questions. Also clearly demonstrated where I went wrong in any problem sheet, and how to obtain the correct answer.

Student 3: Very useful- as we were given the best answers for each question then we could build on our own answers and easily see how to improve them

Student 4: Very informative, also Itzhak always seemed really happy to answer any questions and I never felt as though I couldn't ask about something

Student 5: Tutorials were good, the problems were covered well and even different angles were discussed at times and any questions I had were answered. Really good job of explaining game theory as well.

Student 6: Useful!
